

Apple printing is a classic process art activity for preschoolers. It's incredibly simple to set up, and children can enjoy hours of play, art, and fun. It's a brilliant activity that stimulates multiple senses and allows children to explore various early learning concepts through the process.

Materials Needed

White paper fruit knife
apple paint paintbrush marker pens
googly eyes

Step-by-step tutorial

Step 1

Using a fruit knife, cut the apple in half, trying to keep the cut surface as smooth as possible. This step needs adult help - be careful to avoid injury.

Step 2

Squeeze paint onto the cut surface of the apple and use a paintbrush to cover the entire cut surface with paint.

Step 3

Take out the white paper and press the painted apple surface onto it.

Step 4

Lift the apple stamp up, and you've successfully printed an apple! Now continue using different colours to fill up the white paper.

Step 5

Patently wait for the paint on the paper to dry, then stick googly eyes onto your apple prints.

Step 6

Use marker pens to add decorations to your apples, and your apple stamp artwork is complete!
