

Help children maintain a proper pencil grip with just a rubber band! This simple trick helps beginning writers develop correct pencil-holding posture.

Materials Needed

White paper
Markers
Stamp sponge (or paintbrush)
Blue paint
Paint palette

Step-by-step tutorial

Step 1

Download and print a template or create your own. Draw a cloud on white paper and write a letter inside it. Below the cloud, randomly write 7-11 copies of the same letter among other different letters.

Step 2

Dip the stamp sponge in paint and search for matching letters below the cloud. When found, stamp those letters.

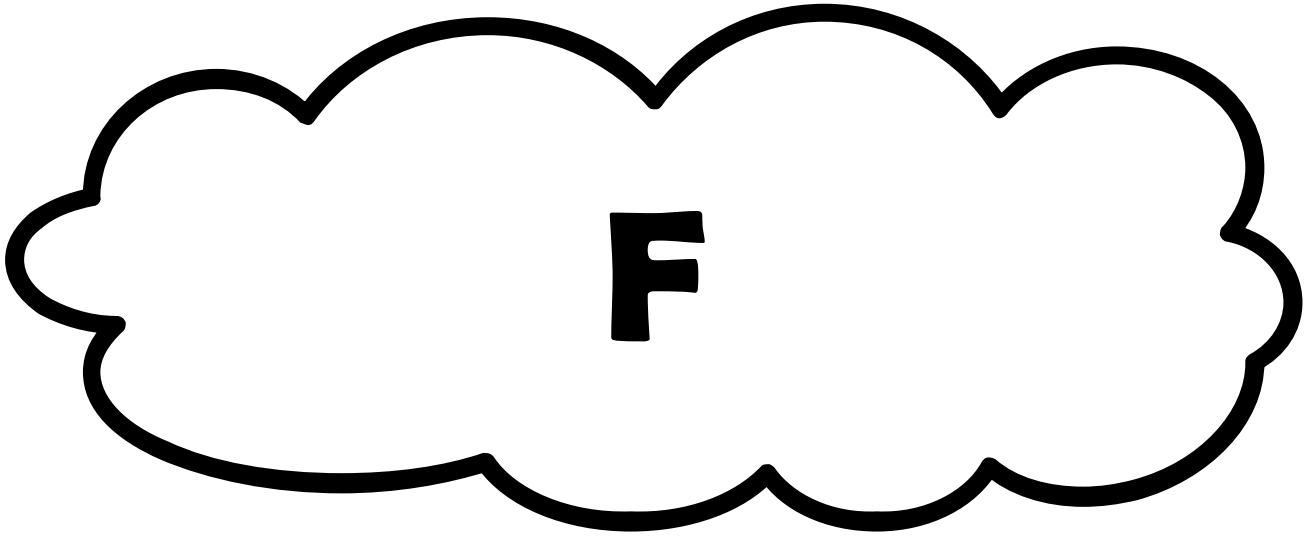

Step 3

Try different letters to make new letter raindrops and learn letters through play.

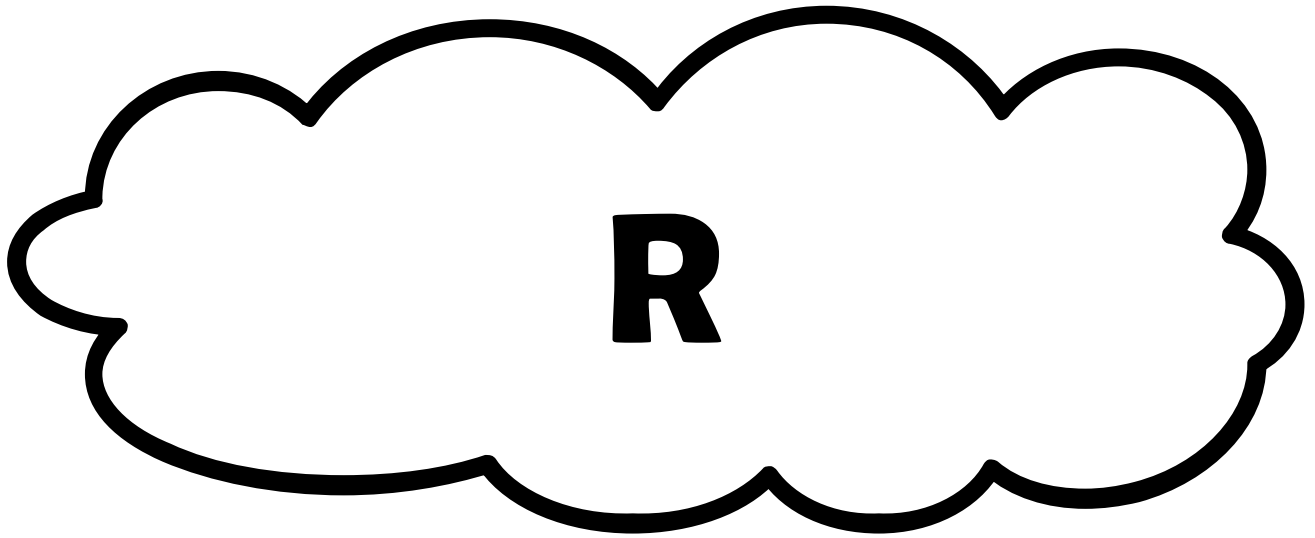

Note:
This engaging activity combines letter recognition with art, making learning more enjoyable for young children. The search-and-stamp approach helps develop both letter recognition and visual discrimination skills while keeping children actively involved in the learning process.
